The Machine Murders

The Island Buoys

by CJ Abazis

---

Manos Manu, a data analyst who works for Interpol in Singapore is in Mykonos attending the wedding of a friend.

Upon his arrival a series of gruesome murders take place and he's summoned to assist the local police in their investigation.

While trying to solve the mystery, the two police worlds clash: that of traditional investigation and that of data mining - used by Manu and his team. In the end, the killer - who abducts and kills his victims, passes a chain through their bodies and drops them in the sea with buoys with the word "FREE" written on them - is caught with the help of Manus' machine learning system.

“ This murderer didn't have a psychological profile;
he had actions, clicks, screen taps...
And numbers, dozens of numbers.
Acronym upon acronym. ”
